Due to many contributing factors, we cannot guarantee that the colors displayed on the website will exactly match the color of the product. There are many variables which can change the way you "see" the colors as you view our site. Computer monitors are capable of displaying up to 32million colors and the human eye can only decipher a very small fraction of those colors. And within that small fraction, we all see them differently. In addition, people's monitor settings may influence how colors are displayed depending on each individual monitors brightness and contrast settings.

Computer monitors have inherent limitations, and electronically reproducing color on the Internet is imprecise. Therefore, we cannot assure you that what you see accurately portrays the color. We have gone to great lengths to portray colors as accurately as possible. If you would like to see actual colors, please contact our customer service department regarding our color fan program.
